Minden budget passes million dollar mark

Anson, Hindon and Minden townships have become a million dollar municipality following the completion of the 1982 budget Thursday evening by the township council. For the first time in the municipality's history township spending has topped the million dollar mark. The total allotment to be collected in 1982 for work within the three townships was set at $1,034,632.

Actually the municipality has been collecting more than a million dollars in taxes for a number of years, but portions of that amount have been turned over to the board of education and the county to meet their levies.

This year is no exception, as the county and education system will claim nearly 40% of the municipality's total levy of $1,920,342. Some $756,000 will be set aside for education while the county claims $131,224.

The municipal budget figure represents an increase of close to $63,000 over the municipality while at the same time reduce the need for the township to borrow large amounts.

Other major increases include a $19,900 leap in Health Services spending, $10,856 of which will go towards salaries for ambulance personnel. All expenditures in Health Services however, receive 100 per cent subsidy from the Ministry of Health.

Social and Family services are also slated for a major increase in spending. An additional $10,227 will be spent this year, with welfare accounting for a $9,598 increase.

The municipality will spend $26,674 more on recreational and cultural services in 1982. $8,572 will go towards the cost of paving the parking lot and walkways at the Library/Cultural Centre and funds for parks development are also up $3,000 over last year's budget for a total of $7,000. Grants to various organizations are also up $3,000.

The old Minden library took a spin through town Friday on its way to a new home at the Library and Cultural Centre. The building will house a new museum at the site.

amount spent in 1981. Mill rates throughout the municipality will increase an average of 9.2% to cover the tax boost. (Tax rates vary from area to area within the townships. A chart on page three outlines the mill rates for the year.)

The biggest single increase in this year's municipal budget is in the general government department which increases from $180,000 spent last year to $322,000 proposed for 1982. A large portion of that increase is contained in the $108,000 which has been set aside as provision for working capital. These funds will be used to offset capital expenditures made before the second installment of taxes are paid.

Members of the newly formed finance committee are hopeful the increased provision will boost bank interest income for the

In response to a recommendation in the recent CAUSE study conducted in Minden, council has budgeted $10,000 towards a newly created Planning and Zoning Reserve Fund. Planning and zoning costs meanwhile have been increased to $10,000 from the 1981 budget total of $4,000. According to councillor Ed Pergolas who along with Lyle McKnight makes up the municipal finance committee the $10,000 could be used by the municipality towards the cost of an Official Plan for the municipality, or towards specific improvement projects.

Pergolas also said, following the release of the budget, that the new finance committee has made a significant reduction in the work load necessary in preparing the budget. According to Pergolas, he and

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association, facing rising maintenance costs and a complete loss of government grants, announced last week that it will adopt a users pay system for the 1982-83 season.

Government grants to the club have dropped steadily over the past few years, to the point where all government funding has been cut off for the upcoming season. Rising fuel costs, meanwhile, have caused a steady increase in the price of maintaining trails, and association directors now feel that the new system is necessary to keep the club alive.

According to Tom Prentice, the association's president, the move overturns the group's long held policy to remain public. "We have always sworn we would stay public," Prentice said in an interview last week, "but I can't see how we can do it financially now." Prentice also said that the club's 14 directors have discussed various means of raising funds for the club, but that directors did not have enough time to raise sufficient money through club activities.

Under the users pay system, all snowmobilers using the association's trails will be required to pay a users fee. Riders who are not club members will pay a temporary users fee. Club members will make regular patrols to ensure that all people using the trails have paid. Membership and temporary fees for this season have not yet been set by club directors.

Only 10% to pay

Association directors found last year that 90 per cent of snowmobilers using club trails were not paying membership fees. Prentice told The Times that riders using trails without a permit this season could possibly be charged.

"It's not the local people using trails without joining the club, it's more often riders from the city," Prentice said. "They ride trails to their hearts content and leave smiling; the trails end up in awful shape as a result," he added.

Directors are hoping that the new system may actually improve funding for the association. According to Prentice, the Grey-Bruce Snowmobile Association turned down a $13,000 government grant last year and raised $60,000 through its own means. Prentice says the Grey-Bruce club has found the increase in revenue has allowed better trail maintenance, which in turn has brought more snowmobilers to the area.

The Haliburton Association's budget last year was $52,000, $22,000 of which was provided by the provincial government for building a bridge at Gooderham. Other government grants dwindled to $2,800 last year, from $13,000 in 1980-81 season. That left the club with $27,200 in maintenance costs to pick up, an amount that was raised through a draw, two dances, membership fees and strong financial support from the business community. In addition to the Gooderham bridge, the association built two bridges using its own funds. Bridges were established at Black River and Beech River this past season.

Lutterworth municipality, meanwhile has proposed to the provincial government that half of all revenue from snowmobile licence fees be returned to clubs for trail maintenance. The idea has met with support from most of the municipalities in the county, and most have sent their endorsement of Lutterworth's proposal to Queen's Park.

Prentice is hoping the new system will be a success. "We hope we're making the right move. Everyone we've talked to agrees we are. We just hope now that it will work," he said.

As summer unfolds more cottage break-ins being discovered

As the summer season starts, the police are receiving more reports of vacation properties which have been damaged or burglarized during the winter.

Included in this week's report is the case of a Gull Lake cottager who lost his dock, apparently to ice fishermen in search of firewood.

According to the police, Leslie Adams of Toronto came to the local detachment office carrying with him a 2" square of charred wood. The man said the piece of wood was all that remained of his wood dock which had cost $400.

Police say the dock appears to have been dismantled, piece by piece, by fishermen on Gull Lake with the material being used for firewood.

The authorities have also received a number of complaints from Gull Lake cottagers concerning the litter and garbage left behind by the ice anglers. Police, along with the assistance of the Ministry of Natural Resources personnel are attempting to track down those responsible.

Break-ins

Police also report that at least eight break-ins at area cottages have been reported during the past week. In most cases the value of the stolen property was small, with the largest being $775. Among the items taken from the various cottages are, a diamond ring, 2 shot guns, a watch and an amplifier, among others.

In one instance the police were able to nab four intruders who had taken up residence in one of the cottages. They were apprehended as they returned to the cottage in the owner's boat. They had been living in the cottage for a number of days, and one of the individuals had previously been a guest at the cottage.

The four charged with break and enter include:

Donna Gillies, 16, of Beaverton; Michael Dempsey and Rhonda-Ann Bickerton, both 16, and both of Bramalea; and Donald Marsland, 17, of Brampton.

The Bob Lake cottage was the property of Kevin Maloney of Brampton. Damage was estimated at $485 with $306 in stolen goods, most liquor and food.

Budget passed at special council meeting

Claiming to be pressed for time to meet the July 1 deadline for tax bills, the Anson Hindon and Minden council passed the municipal budget for 1982 in a special session last Thursday evening.

Although normal government protocol calls for the budget to be given final approval at a regular public session, the 23 page document was adopted by council, along with the by-law governing the levying and collection of taxes, at the end of a four hour session Thursday night.

According to clerk-treasurer Elinor Burke, the budget was passed in a special session in order to allow the municipality to begin preparing tax bills. "Our tax bills are prepared by computer in New Liskeard, and if we'd waited for a public session to discuss the budget, we would have missed the July first deadline for getting the bills in the mail," Burke said Monday following the release of the new budget.

Burke also said that, although the meeting was effectively open to the public, no resolution was made at the outset of the session declaring it open, and no notice of the budget meeting was given prior to Thursday.

Most councillors claim that there was "nothing secretive" about the way the budget was passed and that it was approved at special session solely in order to save time. "Normally I suspect that the budget resolution would be passed at a regular session of council, but this year we didn't have time," said councillor Larry Cummins in an interview Tuesday. "I don't feel it was done behind closed doors. Granted it was done at a special meeting, but all the information is available to the press," he added.

Councillor Lyle McKnight also said that there was "nothing secretive" about the way the budget was passed, adding that as far as he could recall, the municipal budget had always been approved at a special session during his six years on Minden council. "I don't disagree that the final resolution could have been made at a regular session, but in my opinion if you called an open meeting on the budget, you'd simply never get it done," he said.

In an interview Tuesday, Reeve Lloyd Walker said that the council had "nothing to hide." "I don't see any reason why the budget couldn't be passed at a public meeting, but as far as I'm concerned, I don't think people would care if the press were there or not."

Walker added that the budget had only been passed "to a point," and that he "couldn't be certain" if the by-law allowing the municipality to levy and collect taxes had in fact been passed. Clerk-treasurer Burke confirmed Monday that the budget and the by-law had both been approved by council at the Thursday session.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Municipal Affairs told The Times Monday that the municipality must give due notice of a special meeting before it can be considered public, and that any by-law is only binding if passed at a public meeting.

Paul Jones of the Ministry's Orillia office admitted, however, that the Municipal Act does not state clearly whether "due notice" refers to councillors or members of the general public, but he did say that passing a by-law in a session that is not clearly open to the public, "goes against the whole spirit of municipal government."

Council endorses '82 municipal budget

McKnight accepted budget proposals from each of the eight departments in the municipality and then considered them collectively before arriving at final figures for the budget. "We started with a zero budget," Pergolas explained in an interview Tuesday. "It was then up to each department head to justify to the finance committee any increases needed in their budget." Pergolas also said that the committee's approach held budget increases to a minimum.

According to Pergolas, budget increases slated for this year, are based on a 5.4% increase in the Ministry of Transport's road subsidy to the municipality. Instead of increasing departmental budget and tax levies according to the rate of inflation, the finance committee set an increase ceiling of 5.4% for all departments. "We're assuming that Queen's Park's formula for balancing roads department spending would be a solid basis for determining our approach to the municipal budget as well," Pergolas said. "We're giving ratepayers the lesser of two evils," he added, "because if we'd applied the inflation rate to taxes it really would have hurt."

Pergolas also said that the present budget provides reserves for most of the departments within the municipality. According to Pergolas, the funds which have been drawn from last year's surplus of $103,233, will act as contingencies against emergency spending, and cushion the municipal budget against inflation and unseen expenses.

The public ignored (again)

Once again Minden council has shown its contempt for the people they represent. Thursday night, at a meeting that was not attended by anyone other than members of the council and municipal staff members, the budget for 1982 was formulated and adopted.

The document is, of course, public. Details from it appear in today's edition of The Times and complete copies are available for a ratepayer to examine at the municipal office. That is not the point.

The council has demonstrated, once again, its total disregard for the people who elected it, by passing what is the most important annual by-law to come before it, at what was ostensibly a private meeting.

Formulating a budget for a municipality is no easy task. Indeed, it is probably one of the most difficult exercises for politicians to go through. In the past, both here and in other municipalities in the province, it is common for the council to hold many sessions before the details of a budget are finally thrashed out. These meetings are scarcely finally thrashed out. These meetings are rarely covered by the press - salaries are being discussed, the future of the municipality is being mapped. This is a time for frank and open discussion, so the politicians are usually left on their own.

However, once the budget is struck, the formality of bringing all that work into law is usually reserved for a regular public meeting where ratepayers and representatives of the press can be on hand to witness the event. It's a time for more than ceremony - it's a time when the reeve or members of council can point with pride to their restraint, or explain why an increase in the taxes is necessary.

All that has been swept by the board by the Minden council. They have shown contempt for the people who elected them, disregarded tradition and once again called into question their own credibility.

It is unfortunate that the council feels it can act in this manner. Its action demeans not only the individuals who occupy the seats at the table, but also in a small way, the tradition of democracy which sets this country apart from many others in the world.

Liberals call for inquiry into Sick Children's deaths

- by John Eakins, M.P.P. -

Members of the provincial Liberal party are calling for a wide-ranging public inquiry into the recent infant deaths at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

It is recognized that the Hospital for Sick Children is one of the most respected institutions of its kind in the world. No one can deny that the recent traumatic events have left a black cloud hanging over the hospital. For the hospital and, indeed, for all those who care about the services it provides, the challenge is clear: it must be ensured that the high level of public confidence in the institution continues.

There remain a large number of unanswered questions surrounding procedures at the hospital. These relate to both internal procedures at the hospital, with respect to how it responded to the tragic events as they unfolded, as well as the hospital's reporting procedures to the Coroner's office and the Metropolitan Toronto Police.

These are matters which I believe should be addressed by a public inquiry. At the very least, Health Minister Grossman should require that the terms of reference of the Dubin Commission are sufficiently extensive to allow the Commission to investigate these items.

There are a number of questions which should be considered by public inquiry:

- A hospital study in early 1981 showed that 15 of 20 deaths between July and December 1980 were unexpected. When did the cardiac unit notice the unusual incidence of deaths and what did the unit consider to be the cause?

- Why did the hospital make that study and why wasn't the coroner told about the unexpected deaths, as required by law?

- Were the parents of the children whose deaths were probed notified?

- The coroner learned that high levels of digoxin, a potent heart drug, were found in one dead infant and, coincidentally, was later told of another strangely similar death. Had a pathologist reported to another coroner, as could easily have happened, the murders might not have been uncovered. What systems are required to ensure better co-ordination of information to the coroner's office?

- The police, in early 1981, were told of numerous unexplained deaths in the cardiac ward. Why have they not yet determined, 15 months later, which of these deaths were homicidal?

- Why was Susan Nelles charged after only a few days of police investigation and what was the basis for the charges?

- The police decided to start an investigation after being told on March 21, 1981, of two specific deaths, but did not actually start the investigation until March 23. Meantime, two more babies were murdered. Why was the investigation not begun immediately and why did the coroner not insist on this?

- Why did the Crown not withdraw the charges against Nelles when it became known she was not on duty when one of the deaths occurred, given the Crown's case was built on the credibility of circumstan-

I just recently received the Minden and Area directory and enjoyed reading the articles, especially the one on this being an election year.

Recently at a meeting, I had a chance to see the Reeve and four Minden councillors. Once again they have to make a choice of whether to continue their commitment as part of a government system, or step aside for others. Very few people have the courage to accept this challenge of a thankless job. Those who are elected or acclaimed, should hold their heads high for accepting such a tough assignment.

My best wishes to those who care enough to attempt the strenuous task of a campaign and to those who are unopposed. Please never forget the reason you are there, to be part of a decision making body for the good of the county and its varied residents.

Editor:

The Board of Education's declaration in the grade 3 transfer issue "we (the board) have been more than fair" is grossly inaccurate. I question the board's initial handling of the matter in November 1981 when they passed the motion. The board failed to consult their primary specialist for her opinion of the implications of such a move. Nor did they discuss the move with any of the parents. Was the further delay of notifying the parents in anticipation of parent reaction thus limiting time to respond?

When parents finally became aware of the move the committee they organized made very logical representations to the board. They simply wanted to know if the move was in the best interests

MOE day at Frost Centre

Water quality is a vital concern to residents of Haliburton County. How bad are the effects of acid rain in the area? How does cottage development threaten the health of a lake? The Ministry of the Environment's educational program approaches the problem of water quality control as a series of questions, and Thursday twelve students from elementary schools in the county had their chance to formulate their own answers.

The twelve students, from schools in Cardiff, Minden and Haliburton, were the winners of the Ministry's seventh annual Ministry of Environment Poster Contest.

Some 140 grade five and six students submitted designs this year, on a range of topics from acid rain to noise pollution. The twelve students were the guests of Ministry staff last Thursday at the Leslie Frost Centre, where they toured sewage treatment facilities at the Centre and participated in a water quality survey on Lake St. Nora.

Students from Archie Stouffer School in Minden were the big winners in this year's contest. They made up nine of the twelve students taking part in Thursday's tour. After warming up for the day by swinging on tree branches on the front lawn - an impromptu addition to the agenda which was discouraged by Ministry staff - the twelve headed into the Centre's theatre for a slide presentation on the effects of cottage development on the ecology of local lakes.

From there the students moved on to the Frost Centre docks, where they donned life jackets and headed out onto Lake St. Nora for a look at the methods of a water quality survey.

Jan Beaver and Ted Sheldon formed the team of biologists that conducted the survey. Students looked on from the Ministry boat while Beaver, a water scientist from the Central Office of the MOE, went through the many tests that make up a water quality survey.

According to Beaver, who has worked extensively on water quality surveys in Muskoka-Haliburton for several years, the survey provides the Ministry with information on the general health of the lake, while giving additional information on how well the fish will survive in the lake, and the effect of the cottage development as well.

Water clarity tested

Beaver's first demonstration was the Secchi disc, a black and white metal disc that is used to determine water clarity. The method is a fairly simple one, and is now in use by members of several cottagers' associations in the area to provide the Ministry with an on-going record of water clarity. Soyer's Lake cottagers in particular make regular contributions to the MOE's "Self Help Programme" for water quality control.

To begin the test, the disc is lowered into the lake on the end of a line graduated in metres. As Mrs. Beaver counts off the metres, she keeps a careful eye on the disc and stops lowering it when it is no longer visible from the surface. St. Nora's Lake yielded a Secchi disc reading of 7, which Beaver said is typical for a healthy lake. The presence of pollutants in a lake will cause an increase in organic matter in the water, which will in turn decrease the Secchi reading as the lake becomes more cloudy.

Beaver also demonstrated tests for chlorophyll, which includes a test for "biomass", or the size of chlorophyll cells, as well as tests for sodium and potassium chlorides and pH levels. The latter is the key factor in determining a lake's sensitivity to acid rain, and the extent of damage that the water may already have incurred as a result of acid precipitation.

Oxygen sampled

Next on the agenda of the water survey was an oxygen/temperature profile. Beaver explained to students that colder water will dissolve more oxygen than warmer water, and consequently it becomes heavier and remains on the bottom of the lake. She pointed out also that wave action - especially white caps - will greatly increase the oxygen content at the surface of the lake.

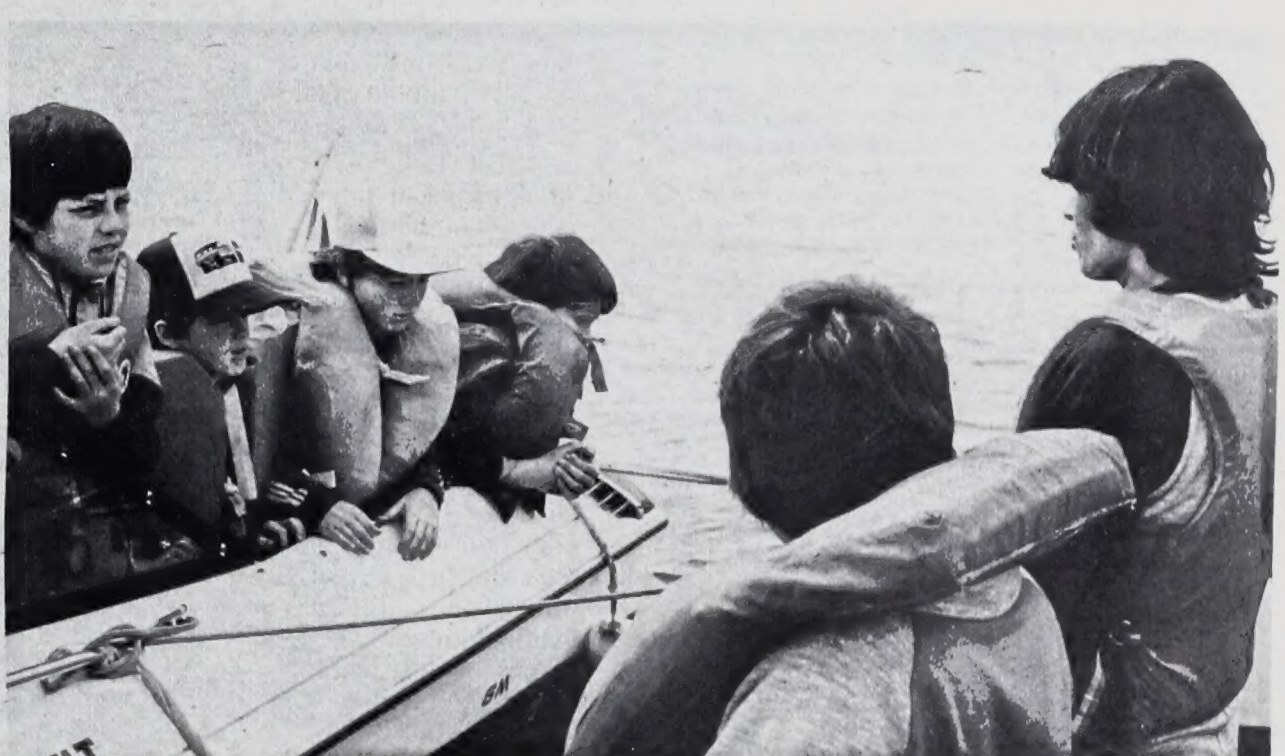

In order to determine precise oxygen content, Mrs. Beaver adds phiosulphate to a small sample bottle of lake water. The resultant reaction with oxygen in the water turns the sample yellow. Mrs. Beaver then gradually adds drops of sulphuric acid, which counteracts the reaction between the phiosulphate and oxygen, reducing the yellow colour as a result. Just before the final trace of yellow is gone, Mrs. Beaver adds a starch solution to the sample, which turns the water a murky black. This makes it easier to determine the precise moment at which the sample loses its colour. The result: the amount of acid needed to neutralize the colour of the water indicates the amount of oxygen initially present in the sample.

At the conclusion of the water testing, students and MOE staff moved to the Frost centre cafeteria for one of the famous Frost Centre lunches.

Then it was on to the sewage treatment facility at the Centre for a look at how the Frost Centre runs its own sewer and treatment plant, which purifies water to the point where it can be returned to Lake St. Nora. Frost Centre sewage plant technician, Cliff Skelding, pointed out the several stages involved in the activated sludge system employed at the plant. "Extended aeration" is a method of circulating air through sewage to maximize the interaction of the sewage with bacteria contained in the sludge.

Thursday's programme was one of many that have been run by the Ministry in recent years. The MOE alternates between Muskoka and Haliburton each year, sponsoring the poster contests and treating winners from one of the two areas to a day's educational activities at the Frost Centre. It appears to be an effective means of keeping students informed of the burden placed on area lakes through recreational use.

Jan Beaver conducts a test on a water sample from Lake St. Nora... and explains the results as grade five and six students look on from an MOE boat alongside.

of their children. Were the children being put in the most ideal situation or were they being taken out of it?

It has become obvious that the motive(s) for the move has more to do with keeping the Senior Elementary School at capacity for administrative efficiency. The children are secondary considerations and will have to fit in. As evidence of this, the chairman has stated that the board had to "bend over backwards" and had to "make major concessions" to diminish the concerns of the parents. If the board's primary focus is the best interests of the children then why was it necessary to make these major concessions only after intervention by the parents?

When parents met with the board committee to detail their concerns the committee invited the Senior Elementary School principal in an attempt to pave the way for the transfer. If the committee were open minded to the concerns of the parents, if they were dealing in good faith, they would also have invited the Victoria Street School principal to this meeting. Yet, they only met with Mrs. Gorrie at the repeated insistence of the parents who themselves were excluded from this meeting. Later committee members evaded parents' questions as to the details of their discussions with Mrs. Gorrie.

No matter how many logical questions parents asked, no matter how many suggestions they made, the board retreated behind such superficial excuses as "there are many extenuating circumstances". When the board ran out of vague answers, when the board was told that Victoria St. School did not want to lose the grade 3's and had made plans to accommodate them, board members responded in a derogatory attack on parents, accusing them of "refusing to change" and as being "problems" to the board.

Well, there certainly is a problem. The parents, in fact, have not received a fair hearing. The board did not show good planning in the best interests of the children at the outset. The board has demonstrated incompetence in dealing openly and honestly with the parents. They continue not to present coherent reasons for the transfer and have insulted parents who question the move. They should resign in disgrace.

by Ron Reid - Federation of Ontario Naturalists

As you wander through the spring woods, chances are good that you will eventually hear a muffled drumming off in the distance. At first, it sounds a bit like distant thunder, or perhaps an old-style John Deere tractor being started. In fact, it's one of nature's most distinctive sounds - the drumming of the ruffed grouse.

The drumming is part of a spring ritual that establishes this woodland chicken's home territory, and attracts a female for a mate. A male grouse hops on his favourite drumming log, sits down crossways with his tail fanned out, and draws his wings back in a series of short, rapid strokes. The strokes increase in tempo, each one producing a distinct "thump", until the sequence ends with a loud whirr. The grouse then shakes his feathers back to normal in readiness for the next drum roll, which may take place within a moment or two or days later, depending on the season.

What causes the sound?

The American Indians used to believe it was the wings striking the drumming log. Other naturalists thought the wings struck each other, or against the side of the bird's breast. In fact, when high-speed photography solved the riddle, it was discovered that the wings strike nothing but air, and that the sound results simply from the compression of air by the grouse's cupped wings.

Drumming grouse are easiest to find in the spring, since they use the same log repeatedly. However, the sound is deceptive, since a drumming grouse which is quite close sounds much the same as one a quarter mile away. Since the drumming sound is so low on the scale, at about 40 cycles per second, we are lucky to be able to hear it at all. (Some naturalists claim that they "feel" the drumroll, rather than hear it.) Amazingly, the great horned owl, which is the main predator for grouse, is foiled by this territorial signal. An owl can hear the high squeaking sounds of mice, up to 7,000 cycles per second, but its lower hearing range extends only to 60 cycles, so that a grouse drumming right below its tree would go unheard. To an owl which depends largely on its keen hearing for locating prey, such a grouse might as well be invisible.

Toronto still waits for Leigh Sisson after 90 years

With municipal, county and provincial road budgets increasing dramatically every year, you'd think that everyone is taking advantage of the beautiful roads in the province. Not so for Mr. Leigh Sisson of Carnarvon; in all his ninety years, he's never once been to Toronto.

Mr. Sisson celebrated his ninetieth birthday last week, and took the occasion to recount for The Times, some of the changes in transportation that he's watched come and go over the years. Mr. Sisson was born and raised on a farm that lay at the present site of the Homestead cottages north of Carnarvon, and he made his life there with his wife Minnie until retiring from farming several years ago. "We kept cattle, sheep and pigs on the farm," Leigh recalls from the comfort of his living room in a cottage just south of the old farm. "There were times we'd drive them to Minden on foot and the buyer would take them on to Gelert on foot before finally putting them on the train for the city. "I've walked to Minden more than once, I'll tell you that," Mr. Sisson says assuredly.

When not busy with the business of driving cattle, Leigh and Minnie often drove the rugged road to Minden by horse and buggy; Minnie can't recall exactly how long it took, but she is certain it was "no short while." Walking to Carnarvon for the mail was a daily routine when the weather allowed, and children used to walk straight across Boshkung Lake in winter to get to the school on the other side. The owners of Welch's Store built shelves into the back of the store truck and beat the inconveniences of distance by bringing the store to the people.

The lumber industry meanwhile, was a regular sight out the Sissons' back door. Log drives to the mill at Coboconk were common during the Sissons' life on Stanhope resident Leigh Sisson celebrated his ninetieth birthday June 4. He and his wife Minnie have seen a lot come and go during their years farming north of Carnarvon.

Boshkung. Says Leigh, not without a certain amount of pride, "If people on the lake now saw a warp with two horses and a load of logs go by their door, they'd wonder what the hell was going on..."

Despite the demands of early modes of transportation Highway 35, since its completion in 1932, has brought Toronto closer all the time. Why in 90 years has Mr. Sisson never once been to Toronto? "I was never intended to be," he explains simply. As for Minnie, she's been "once or twice, but I never made the habit of it; I didn't like it," she frowns.

Leigh adds, "Now you look at the flyin' business, they're flying all over the world these days, bee geez. We've seen some awful changes since we've been here, I tell you."

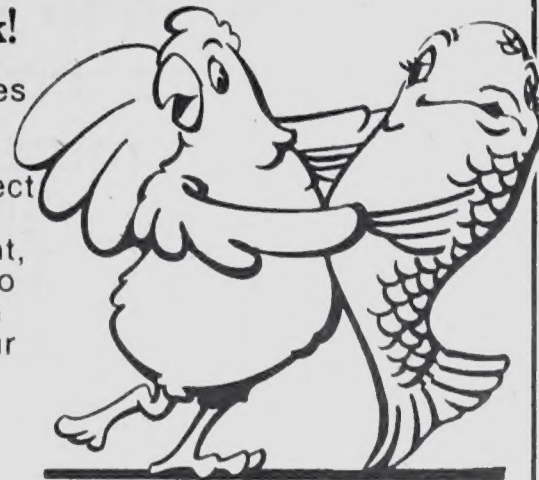

Now on a sunny weekend afternoon, a steady stream of cars heads back to the city on the highway outside the Sissons' home. In three hours Leigh could be sitting in traffic at Yonge and Bloor or pulling up beneath the CN Tower.

There have been some changes indeed, but the view of Boshkung still looks good from where the Sissons are sitting.

MD claims new fees short-change rural doctors

The new OHIP settlement may be short changing rural doctors, according to one local MD and a spokesman for the OMA agrees that new faces may be "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Doctor Antony Holliday-Rhodes and his wife Sonya have found that the new OHIP fee schedule makes a significant reduction in fees paid for emergency work, which constitutes an important part of a rural doctor's income.

According to Sonya Holliday-Rhodes, who does the OHIP billing for her husband, the OHIP settlement will reduce doctor's fees in two areas: procedural fees for emergency work and fees for hospital calls after regular hours. The 1981 OHIP schedule paid doctors a set rate of $8.40 for seeing a patient in the hospital between the hours of 5 p.m. and midnight. The new schedule reduces the visit fee, which, in the case of a minor laceration, would amount to only $2.14.

The surgical premium fee meanwhile, which is paid to family doctors for performing minor surgery during the evening hours, has dropped from a flat fee of $16.80 to 20 per cent of the fee for the surgery itself. The new formula reduces the surgical premium fee for a minor laceration to only $1.78. The decreases would reduce a doctor's overall fee for a night visit to the hospital from $42.70 to $23.32.

Mrs. Holliday-Rhodes, who was interviewed by a CBC Toronto crew at her Minden home Tuesday calls the new OHIP settlement "unfair" to rural doctors.

"The settlement is unfair to doctors who have a large seasonal business and who work out of a small hospital," Mrs. Holliday-Rhodes said in an interview with The Times Tuesday. "Emergency work pays the largest share of doctor's income in rural areas like Minden and the new fees will mean serious reductions," she said.

Mrs. Holliday-Rhodes says the spokesman for the Ontario Medical Association in Toronto told her last week that the predicament of rural doctors was "tough luck" and that there's "nothing they can do about it." According to Mrs. Holliday-Rhodes, Peter Fraser of the OMA's Toronto office told her that the OMA had "robbed Peter to pay Paul," and that the association was never required to provide a pay increase for all doctors, but simply for "the medical profession". Efforts to contact Mr. Fraser proved fruitless. He was unavailable for comment last week and is now on holiday.

Mrs. Holliday-Rhodes also says that an increase in obstetrics fees will help to cover the decreases in small towns with substantial hospitals, but that the increase will not affect Minden since the facility does not ordinarily handle births.

"I project that this is going to hit hard in two or three months when doctors here have a chance to see the effects of the new billing system. They'll realize then that this is going to really hurt their practices in the slow winter months."

Henry VIII reigns again

Henry the Eighth returned to the throne Saturday evening in Haliburton County.

The occasion for the re-appearance of this famous British monarch was a fund-raising feast sponsored by the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts. The feast and festivities were held at the Chateau Woodland on Lake Kashagawigamog.

A group of actors and entertainers from the Barrie-Orillia area provided the entertainment in the form of a full banquet. Known as Dick Turpin Players, the group brings crown and throne, serving wenches and a beefeater, the stocks and merriment.

The meal harkens back to the Tudor days in Merrie England. Forks and knives are nowhere to be found as patrons sip their soup from the bowl, rip clumps of bread from the giant loaves placed on the tables. Dinner consists of chicken with two vegetables enjoyed with fingers only.

For the unwary, the king and his court brought certain members of the crowd forward for suitable "punishment." Most ended up in the stocks while others had to perform tasks to the delight of their fellow merrymakers. Through it all, endless pitchers of ale flowed in abundance and when the king called "All Hail!" the assembled Lords and Ladies responded with "Wassail!"

topped with a quenching of the golden bubbly to soothe the parched throat.

Members of the Dick Turpin Players also entertained with songs and musical numbers, many of which included the audience in a singalong.

An enjoyable evening by all counts.

Beautify your neighbourhood. Get out on the street. Take a walk.

Wilberforce defeats Dixie Lee 10-9

The Minden Dixie Lee women's softball team faced a much improved Wilberforce team Monday night (May 31) and came away on the losing end of a 10-9 decision.

The win marked the first victory of the season for the Wilberforce club. They got off to a big start in the opening two innings against Minden, bagging three runs before Minden finally replied with a single run in the fourth. The fifth inning all belonged to Minden, however, as the Dixie Lee girls smashed in 6 runs to take a 7-6 lead.

Wilberforce turned it around again in the bottom of the sixth, connecting for four big runs that put the game out of reach for Minden. Minden's single run in the seventh brought them within one, but Wilberforce retired victorious with a 10-9 win. Kim Mumford and Jo Olsogonski were the big hitters for Wilberforce, and Nelda Cully was strong for the Dixie Lee squad.

Gail Rowbottom pitched the win for Wilberforce while Ann Hewson took the loss for Minden.

It was open season on pitchers in Haliburton Monday night. The Haliburton Ladies team swung the lumber for no less than 26 runs against a shell-shocked Carnarvon team, who responded with 6 runs to go down 26-6. Sheila Elstone, Betty Whiteway and Wanda Scott were the heavy hitters for Haliburton. Pam Iles and Miriam Smith shared the win on the mound.

A strong West Guilford club was dealt a surprise by the Minden Juniors in Minden. A strong showing on the mound by Minden's Cheryl Dillon helped deal West Guilford their first defeat of the season by a score of 7-3. Darlene Pettis, Wendy Ballantyne and Tara Davies led the Juniors to the win.

Wilberforce and the Dixie Lee club went at it again in Minden Tuesday night, (June 1) with Minden looking for revenge after a surprising defeat in Wilberforce the night before. Dixie Lee led it 2-1 at the end of the second, then rallied for seven runs in the third, setting up for a 12-3 win. Nelda Cully racked up 5 strikeouts to take the win for Minden. Barb Barnhart, Marg Fielding and Judy Jackson were the stand outs for Dixie Lee. Andrea Burk was the losing pitcher for Wilberforce.

West Guilford dropped their second game of the season 6-5 to Haliburton at home. Nancy Maughan played her first game of the season and turned in a strong performance. Bethany Woods and Merry Berry knocked in the two runs for West Guilford. Joan McKay took the loss on the mound for Wilberforce.

Carnarvon had tough luck again Wednesday against Wilberforce; this time they went down 33-10 by the time the dust had cleared. Gail Krupla, Kim Mumford and Sue Walton each registered five runs for Wilberforce.

Top athletes receive awards

Two students of Haliburton Highlands High School shared the male athlete of the year award presented Tuesday evening. Tim Davies and Ron Yake were honoured for their contribution to the school's athletics by being named co-recipients of the award.

Margie Newton, the HHSS athlete who competed in the All-Ontario finals last week, was named female athlete of the year.

This is believed to be the first time in the history of the award that two individuals have shared in the honour in one year. It is the second time that Ron Yake has received the award.

In making the presentation, physical education staff members Kit Pizzey and Gary Brohman pointed out that the awards represented more than exceptional athletic ability. The staff members noted that the award recognized leadership, sportsmanship, participation and attitude as well as skill.

A complete report on the awards night ceremony will appear in next week's edition of The Times.

Driver charged

A charge of impaired driving has been laid against a Stouffville resident following an accident Sunday morning in Minden.

Mavis Leitch, 19, was the driver of a vehicle which failed to negotiate a curve on Newcastle Street and slammed into a car parked in a driveway. Both the driver and her passenger, Lisa Henderson of Caledon Township, were treated for minor injuries at the Minden Red Cross Hospital.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2000.

Constable Bryan Bowers was the investigating officer.

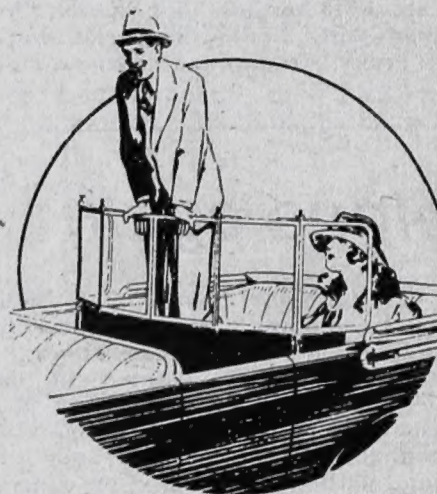

Collision

A two car collision on Highland Street in Haliburton Village has resulted in over $2000 damage.

According to the police, John Hoxie, 69, of Dysart Township, was attempting to turn into a driveway on the right side of the roadway when his vehicle collided with another being driven by Barbara Ann Hansen, 33, of Haliburton.

Police have charged Hansen with improper passing on the right.

The investigating officer was Constable Weldon Popp.

No-hitter for Shaw in victory

Rockcliffe Hustlers' pitcher Barry Shaw turned in a big performance Wednesday against Woodville, pitching a no-hitter to lead the Minden team to its second straight win of the season. The Hustlers handled a young club from Woodville 6-0 in the Wednesday evening game.

The Woodville contest was Shaw's first of the season. Woodville managed to get only one man on base all game with that opportunity coming on an error by the Hustlers.

The Hustlers picked up a run in the first inning, and came through again in the third to take a 2-0 lead. The fourth inning proved to be the clinch for Minden, with the Hustlers knocking in three runs to go ahead 5-0. The final run came for the Hustlers in the sixth inning, sealing the win 6-0.

Colin Newell made a strong showing at the plate for the Hustlers, hitting two singles.

Margie jumps 1.60 m at Ontario finals

Haliburton High's Margie Newton finished her track season as the tenth best senior girls high jumper in the province, a finish that is not a personal best, but nonetheless marks a strong showing for the only HHSS athlete to ever reach the provincial finals.

Newton's best jump in Saturday's meet in Toronto was 1.60 metres, only 2 centimetres below her personal best of 1.62 metres. Newton beat two out of the three girls that finished ahead of her at the regional finals last week in Ottawa, and was actually out-jumped by only four other athletes. Six competitors finished with jumps of 1.60 metres, but the tie was broken by considering the number of misses each girl registered before the final jump.

Newton was the first athlete from Haliburton High to reach the provincial finals two years in a row, and she is also the first girl to ever reach the finals from Haliburton.

Are loon populations threatened in Ontario?

For how long will the eerie call and wild laugh of the loon continue to be heard by those of us who enjoy Ontario's lakes? To many people, the Common Loon is the very symbol of our wilderness lakes. Yet man may be slowly pushing the loon out of its favoured breeding grounds.

Ontario's 250,000 lakes comprise a major part of the breeding grounds of the North American Common Loon population. However, many of these lakes are becoming overrun by motorboats and cottages, while others are steadily succumbing to the effects of acid rain.

The Ontario Lakes Loon Survey is seeking information on the status and distribution of loons in Ontario to find out whether the loon is being affected by recreational development and acid rain. If you will be visiting a lake this summer and are interested in participating in the survey write to Robert Alvo, Ontario Lakes Loon Survey, P.O. Box 160, Port Rowan, Ontario, N0E 1M0, for a questionnaire.

"Loon populations have already been decreasing in some areas in North America, and we want to find out if this is occurring in Ontario as well," Mr. Alvo has said. "We would appreciate hearing from anyone who is willing to help with our survey."

The Ontario Lakes Loon Survey is a project of the Long Point Bird Observatory, a non-profit conservation, research and educational organization with headquarters at Port Rowan, Ontario. The loon survey receives support from the Canadian Wildlife Service, the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, the North American Loon Fund, and the World Wildlife Fund (Canada).

75 years of service

The Lindsay Agricultural Office has been serving the people of Victoria and Haliburton Counties for 75 years this month.

It was in June 1907 that Mr. F. H. Reed arrived in Lindsay to open the Agricultural Office and serve as Agricultural Representative for the Ontario Department of Agriculture. He was a young man who had recently graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph.

This office in Lindsay was one of the six original offices, opened on a trial basis that year across Ontario. This was the start of Agricultural Extension work in North America. Today, every region of this continent and, in fact, most countries of the world, have Agricultural Extension programmes patterned to some extent on that program started in Ontario in 1907.

Mr. Reed served as Agricultural Representative here in Lindsay until 1909. That year he was succeeded by Mr. D. A. MacKenzie who served as Rep. until 1913. Then Mr. A. A. Knight was Agric. Rep. until 1926.

In 1926 Mr. Matt H. Winter became the Rep. serving in that capacity until 1948. Mr. LeRoy G. Brown was Agric. Rep. here for 26 years, from 1948 until his retirement on December 31, 1975.

From 1901 to 1925 a number of people were assigned to Lindsay for short periods of time to assist the Agric. Rep. with specific programs such as Short Courses for Junior Farmers, or School Fairs. In 1952 an Assistant Ag. Rep. and an Agricultural Engineer joined the staff on a full time basis. The Home Economist transferred to Lindsay in 1954.

The current staff in the Lindsay office include Joye Barwell and Joan Miller, Stenographers; Carm Hamilton, Agric. Rep.; Mark Leahy, Assoc. Ag. Rep.; Bert Maggach, Agric. Engineer; Barb McNich, Acting Home Economist; Neil Moore, Soils and Crops Specialist; and Dale Toombs, Food and Development Officer.

This week, June 7 to 10, the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food is recognizing the 75th anniversary of extension work in Ontario at the Annual Conference for extension staff, being held at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph.

She also attributed her long life to a simple formula of "breathing in and then out".

Here's another word search and, I think you'll find this one is a bit tougher than the puzzle from two weeks ago. Try to find the words listed below in the jumble of letters. The words appear horizontally, vertically and on an angle, running both left to right and vice versa. Have fun!

Service in the chapel Sunday night. It is nice to have the Harold Thompsons back again. Harold read the lesson, also led in prayer. Mrs. Thompson played the music. Rev. Burgess spoke on "my meat is to do the will of Him that sent me".

Monday afternoon ladies in the craft room getting ready for their bazaar. Mrs. Eastman has knit seven afghans so far. Watched two movies Monday night. "Building the Alaska pipeline" at such a price. Then "New Zealand", which was really nice.

Tuesday morning Rev. Wicks of Minden Gospel church held service in the chapel here. We sang "There Shall Be Showers of Blessing, oh that today they might fall", and they did, whether we needed them, or not, after all the rain we got. We thank them both for coming this first day of June. Rev. Wicks delivered the message, and Fred Ballard to play the tunes. The Earl Cooper family came to entertain us Tuesday night. They sure know how to do the job, and do it just right. They played some real toe-tapping tunes, and entertained us so, until Earl got word his cattle broke out, and they just had to go.

Doris said, "Would you like to go for a bus ride, this lovely June day. We are going to Cullen Gardens, down at Whitby, by the way." I said I would like to go, but, alas and alack, if I go down there, they will never let me back. A lot of residents went from here, and all back did land, and they said the gardens were simply grand.

Thursday afternoon the A.C.W. Ladies from Wilberforce put on a tea party, this lovely June day. We thank them all for coming from so very far away. Thursday night, the bingo was put on by the Kinsmen Club, where the ladies Marj Young and Marg Prentice did the job real well instead of the men.

Sing-song time again this Friday afternoon. Our entertainers came again to play and sing some tunes. Grace generally has a couple of poems, which help to entertain, and we look forward to the time when they come back again.

The Browns have gone to Montreal to attend their niece's wedding. There seems to be a lot of weddings taking place in May and June. Our grandson is getting married tomorrow afternoon.

Friday night, Doris piled us in the bus and to Carnarvon we did go to the Rawlins reception. It was a real grand show. They square danced, round danced, and after did the Highland Fling. The music was so blooming good, it made the rafters ring. Lil worked here for many years, leader of recreation, a job she carried out real well, we say without hesitation. For Elsie Bursey it was a welcome home, for to Australia last winter she did roam to visit her sister. Her neighbours around Hall's Lake say that they did surely miss her.

book nook

Here's a look at some of the new books on the shelves at the Minden Library.

Juvenile fiction

Author: Carey M.V. Title: Alfred Hitchcock & Mystery of Singing Serpent. For Juvenile mystery readers, here is a good story to take the place of Nancy Drew or Hardy Boys.

Juvenile non-fiction

Author: Farnworth - J. 745.5. Folk toys and how to make them. This book gives good directions for making a variety of simple toys, as jointed dolls, windmills and jumping jacks, and many more.

Adult non-fiction

Author: Diana Norman, 133.1. Title: Tom Corbett's Stately Ghosts of England. Tom Corbett visits the homes of Britain's Aristocracy in search of their ancestral ghosts. A very honest approach is made by the author in the recounting. An interesting book whether you are a believer or a non-believer in ghosts.

Adult fiction

Author: Dallas Miller. Title: Passage West. Sweeping through a quarter of twentieth-century history, moving with enthralling power from the Ireland of the Easter Uprising to New York, Cambridge, San Francisco, Hollywood and Washington D.C., Passage West tells the parallel stories of Nora Shannon and Patrick Cassidy, two Irish immigrants who, through widely different means, fight their way to the top of the new worlds they seek to conquer.

For Nora, opportunity comes through a chance meeting with Charles Malloy, a wealthy widower who falls desperately in love with her. Determined to reward Charles' faith and adoration, Nora sets out to become a matriarch of New York/Southampton Irish Catholic Society. When her beloved oldest child, Tom, is admitted to Harvard and, as a golden youth, marries into Hudson River aristocracy, she feels her prayers have been answered, unaware of the final, cruel blow that fate has in store for her.

For Patrick, the brother of a man who was Nora's fiance in Ireland, America means something else entirely. Caught up against his will in the unionization of Manhattan's garment workers, he finds himself dedicating his life to the cause of Labor. His success in organizing the stevedores of the West Coast brings him face to face with a power structure that seeks his deportation as Communist through a Dies Committee hearing on the eve of World War II. Those who rally both to attack and defend him form an unlikely amalgam of figures from Hollywood, California politics and his own scattered past.

IN MEMORIAM

HARRISON: In loving memory of Grant, who passed away June 9, 1980.

We cannot bring the good times back
Your hands we cannot touch
But we still have fond memories
Of the one we loved so much.
What we would give to hold your hand,
Your happy face to see,
To hear your voice and see you smile -
But it was not to be,
You suffered much and told but few
You didn't deserve what you went through
They say memories are golden
And I guess that's true
But we never wanted memories
We only wanted you.
